SUBMISSION OF MANUSCRIPTS TO ECONOMETRICA

1. Members of the Econometric Society may submit papers to Econometrica electronically in pdf format according to the guidelines at the Society's website:

<http://www.econometricsociety.org/submissioninstructions.asp>

Only electronic submissions will be accepted. In exceptional cases for those who are unable to submit electronic files in pdf format, one copy of a paper prepared according to the guidelines at the website above can be submitted, with a cover letter, by mail addressed to Professor Guido W. Imbens, Cowles Foundation, Yale University, 30 Hillhouse Avenue, New Haven, CT 06511, USA.

2. A submission fee applies to all new submissions. Only membership is required of invited resubmissions as well as papers previously reviewed by Econometrica and submitted for transfer to either Quantitative Economics or Theoretical Economics with their Econometrica decision letter and reports. Individuals residing in countries classified as low-income by the World Bank are exempt from the submission fee.

Accepted papers will incur a fixed per page fee for any typeset material, including any approved supplemental appendices. The publication fee will be collected after final proofs but before publication and invoiced at the then-prevailing rate.

3. It is a condition of publication in Econometrica that copyright of any published article be transferred to the Econometric Society. Submission of a paper will be taken to imply that the author agrees that copyright of the material will be transferred to the Econometric Society if and when the article is accepted for publication, and that the contents of the paper represent original and unpublished work that has not been submitted for publication elsewhere. Authors may retain copyright using the journal's Gold Open Access option and paying the set Article Publication Charge at time of acceptance. If the author has submitted related work elsewhere or if he does so during the term in which Econometrica is considering the manuscript, then it is the author's responsibility to provide Econometrica with details. There is no payment made to the authors.

4. Econometrica has the policy that all results (empirical, experimental, and computational) must be replicable. In particular, these papers should comply with the Data and Code Availability policy publicly available at <https://www.econometricsociety.org/publications/es-data-editor-website/data-and-code-availability-policy>.

5. Current information on turnaround times is published in the Editor's Annual Report in the January issue of the journal. They are reproduced on the journal's website at <http://www.econometricsociety.org/editorsreports.asp>.

6. Papers should be accompanied by an abstract of no more than 150 words that is full enough to convey the main results of the paper.

7. Additional information on submitting papers is available on the journal's website at <http://www.econometricsociety.org/submissionprocedures.asp>.
